Not illustrated. 1805 Excerpt: ...they hoped to persuade the King, that he had every thing to fear from a man who was capable of making his religion triumph over his interest, which it was generally found no considerations, whether sacred or profane, were able to resist. The King, pleased with the prospect of advancing me, received this proposal with intentions. SO different from those by whom it was made to him, that I cannot preserve a too grateful remembrance of his goodness. Accordingly he sent for me one morning to the Louvre; and shutting himself up alone with me in his library, " Well, my friend," said he, " you have "been in great haste to conclude the treaty for "your son's marriage, though I cannot conceive "why; for in this alliance, neither for blood, "riches, nor persoh,vcan I see any advantage for "you." Henry, it is apparent, had forgot that I had done nothing in this affair but by his express commands. "I have resolved," continued he, " to employ you with more authority than ever in "the administration, and to raise you and your fa-"mily to all sorts of honours, dignities, and riches; "but there is a necessity that you should assist "' me in the execution of this design: for if you do, "not contribute to it on your side, it will be diffi"cult for me to accomplish my intentions, without "prejudice to my affairs, and hazarding great "blame; consequences, which, I am persuaded, "you would be unwilling I should draw upon my"self. My design then is, to ally you to myself, "by giving my daughter Vendome in marriage to "your son, with a portion of two hundred thou"sand crowns in ready money, and a pension of "ten thousand a-year: the government of Berry...
