New for 2013!

We are all on Teams, Many Teams, and most have nothing to do with sports at all. We are on a team at home, work, school, church, and numerous organizations, as well as a sports field or court? Coaches, Players, Teams affect us all.

Most All of us are Coaches and don't realize it or won't admit it, for more teams than we realize. This book will assist you to recognize these opportunities, realize how important those moments are and encourage you to act the role. To positively influence those that are looking to you to enlighten, motivate and encourage them.

Manager/Employee, Parent/Child, Coach/Athlete, Teacher/Student, Leader/Member are all team scenarios involving Coach and Player, presenting you the responsibility to act. As you will see and remember, coaches had and have the ability to shape their players. I would go so far as to say influence a person for the rest of their life, to be better or worse at everything they do. So come explore the world of Leading, like you have never perceived it before and do it better. See, recognize and realize your chances and just how truly important your position as a Coach and Leader you play.

"There Are Many i's in Team" is an honest with humorous accounts that will open up and help you understand that the sign has been wrong all these years. It will open your eyes to all the coaching opportunities each and every day on and off your field, in the living room, the board room, the class room, the meeting room, and the community. This book will absolutely help you be a better coach for sports at all levels, but also in non-sport leadership roles, a better teacher, a better manager, a better spouse, a better parent and in turn a better and more successful player, in all the games you are in, including your game of life.

We will ask and learn what is a team anyway and what is a team supposed to do? Who are you, a player or a coach or possibly even both and how you can do it better?

Your Players, your teams are the key to success and winning. They are all competing, crying out for your time and attention so you need to truly know our players. This allows you to be more efficient managing your teams. Further, how we can teach, train, and encourage our players to give a stellar outstanding performance in their and our game.

Players define their Coach and make us as Coaches look good, bad or even Great. But In turn we define our Players, so it is a blatant two way street. They are a product of us and we are Recognized by how well we train them and prepare them, so they look to us or they should, to lead them, teach them, encourage them and at times defend them.

Depending on how well we do all that for our players will be a direct and ultimately define how well our Team does and Our Success. It is all about the players, they hold our key to how we are perceived. This holds true in every facet of Life. Every team we are on. Every game we play in.

Do we even understand why players are playing and why they want to be on our Team? Do you know the rules? Every game has them and they define and control the game. Do you know the rules, the real rules, inside and out, as it will make you a better Coach and leg up on your competition.

This book will assist and help you and your teams to take a very different approach to the many games we are involved in and to navigate them better, enjoy them more, possibly even have fun playing them. All games should be FUN. When they stop being fun, they stop being a game and some stop playing. Learn how to make your Teams and Players perform better, get bigger rewards, be more successful and have FUN playing, while really winning.

Brian the Author, shares 30 plus years' experience as a Coach, Business Owner, Manager, Teacher and Community Leader, sharing his observations, views and thoughts so you can see the inner workings of Coaching, Your Players, Your Teams and that there are indeed Many i's in Team.
